

COMCAST-SPECTACOR TO COMMEMORATE ICONIC MOMENT IN PHILADELPHIA FLYERS HISTORY WITH UNVEILING OF NEW STATUE AT XFINITY LIVE! ON MARCH 30

Flyers Encourage Fans To Cast Vote For Name Of Statue By Visiting PhiladelphiaFlyers.com

Philadelphia, PA – March 25, 2013 – Comcast-Spectacor will unveil a new seven-foot tall bronze statue commemorating one of the most iconic moments in Philadelphia Flyers history during a free, open-to-the-public ceremony at XFINITY Live! on Saturday, March 30, beginning at 11 a.m. The unveiling of the new statue also marks the one-year anniversary of Philly's newest and most exciting dining and entertainment complex, XFINITY Live!

This new 400-pound statue depicts the Flyers greatest achievement in their history – May 19, 1974 – the day the team captured their first of two Stanley Cups. The new statue features then team captain Bob Clarke and then goaltender Bernie Parent hoisting the Stanley Cup.

Fans are encouraged to attend a ceremony to unveil the statue in front of the Broad Street Bullies Pub at XFINITY Live! on Saturday, March 30 at 11 a.m.

The name of the statue, chosen by Flyers fans, will be announced at this ceremony. Fans are encouraged to log onto PhiladelphiaFlyers.com to cast their vote for one of the following statue names; Victory, The Cup, Broad Street Bullies, Flyers Champions or Walk Together Forever.

Clarke and Parent will attend the ceremony as will team Chairman Ed Snider and Team President Peter Luukko.

Designed by STATUES.COM, the statue was custom created and built by the talented sculpting and fabrication team who specializes in statue manufacturing. The team included Lead Production Manager Vasilius Karpos, Lead Foundry Manager Ken Donnelly, artisan foundry refining by Miguel Cardoso and Yanni Trastis, silicone mold construction by Konstantinos Karpos and Yanni Trastis and clay sculpting construction by Virgil Oirtle and Konstantinos Karpos. Sculpting began from scratch using fine artistic clays using the “famous photo” as direct reference to create detailed accuracy of not only that moment in time but of both players portraiture, uniforms and the Stanley Cup itself.

After the seven-ft. tall model was completed and approved, a silicone mold was constructed followed by highly skilled bronze foundry work, finishing the over 400 lbs. bronze monument. The entire process took almost nine months to complete and all work was proudly produced, created and constructed in the United States.

The studio that the statue was created in is located in Salt Lake CityUtah, and is a Certified Made In USA company operating since 1995.

XFINITY Live! Philadelphia will host a weekend full of celebrations to commemorate its one-year anniversary beginning on Friday, March 29 through Sunday March 31. Throughout the weekend, XFINITY Live! will exemplify why it has widely become known as “Philadelphia’s fourth stadium” as it will feature live broadcasts of the Flyers, 76ers and Phillies, the NCAA Basketball Tournament and celebrate to the beat of top regional cover bands.
