Noon and 4pm: World Cup Game Watch Party. XFINITY Live! intends to throw the ultimate World Cup viewing party, and with a 32-foot LED screen, who can argue with that? Each U.S.A. game will also give you the chance to win an authentic jersey courtesy of Bullies Pub. Today, catch our boys take on Germany and attempt to advance to the Round of 16. 11am. Free.

XFINITY Live! Philadelphia, 1100 Pattison Ave. 267.443.6415.

3pm: Peace on the Streets. POWER 99's annual music celebration brings artists from all over the country together—along with notable speakers and community resources—to help promote peace and positivity in Philadelphia communities. The free concert features performances by Ca$h Out, Mack Wilds, Anthony Lewis & Billy Bang, MPrynt and more. Free. Great Plaza at Penn's Landing. 101 S. Columbus Blvd. 215.629.3200.

7:30pm: Slam, Bam, Thank You Ma'am. Painted Bride Quarterly's improv story-and-poetry slam returns with its first installment of the summer. Host Andrew Keller will be presiding over the audience-participation revelry. 7:30pm. Free. Pen & Pencil Club, 1522 Latimer St. 215.731.9909.

8pm: The Antlers. The Antlers write some of their best material under a shroud of melancholy. With the release of their fifth studio album, Familiars, the Brooklyn trio continues to be more than capable of crafting haunting dream pop soundscapes accentuated by gloomy lyrics. 8pm. $15-17. With Mr. Twin Sister. Union Transfer, 1026 Spring Garden St. 215.232.2100.

8:30pm: Say Anything. It's hard to believe that Say Anything has been a band for nearly 15 years, but they always come up with new ways to keep fans from getting bored. Their latest, Hebrews, boasts a star-studded cast of guest singers, including Blink-182's Tom DeLonge, Braid's Bob Nanna and Balance and Composure's Jon Simmons. 8:30pm. $19. With the Front Bottoms, the So So Glos + You Blew It! Electric Factory, 241 N. Seventh St. 215.627.1332.
